Synthetic training case — EXAMPLE-01 — case version: 6. Local draft only; sharing permission has not been verified. MOCK reference; no actual employee review; this does not confirm fraud, external facts, completed actions or delivery.

The person reports receiving an SMS at 09:00 on 16 October 2026 claiming to be SYN Bank A. They opened verify-bank.example and entered a banking password and a one-time code; no secret values are recorded. At 09:30 they noticed an unfamiliar debit in the SYN Bank A app. The employee corrected the initially entered AUD 2,000 to AUD 200. The person later described the debit as pending. This supports suspected phishing, but the sender's identity and the connection between the message and the debit remain unverified.

The person uses SYN Telco B and reported no prior contact with either organisation before intake. They say the text remains on their phone; no material was supplied or verified. Further contact from the sender, transaction time, payment method and recipient remain unknown. Questioning ended after one round of three questions. No subsequent action or delivery has been recorded.
