Synthetic training case — EXAMPLE-01 — case version: 6. Insufficient approved guidance; human review required. Local factual summary only.

The person reports receiving an SMS claiming to be SYN Bank A, opening verify-bank.example and entering a banking password and a one-time code. No secret values are recorded. They report noticing an unfamiliar debit at 09:30 on 16 October 2026. The employee corrected the amount from AUD 2,000 to AUD 200; the person later described it as pending. These statements support suspected phishing, but the sender's identity and the debit's connection to the SMS are unverified.

The person uses SYN Telco B and reported no prior contact with either organisation before intake. They say the SMS remains on their phone; no material was supplied or verified. Transaction time, payment method, recipient and continuing contact remain unknown. Questioning ended after one round of three questions. No subsequent action or delivery is recorded. This summary provides no specific handling recommendation or recipient handover.
